

With the World Economic Forum since 2016, currently a Global Leadership Fellow and leads the COVID Action Platform. Prior to this, built and led partnerships with leading companies from Europe and North America, particularly in the Healthcare and Consumer industries. Previous experience a strategy consultant focused on developing and sustaining public-private partnerships to advance global health. Master of Public Health, Columbia University; BA in International Politics and Economics and Philosophy, Middlebury College.