

Yuriko Hokazono

Staff Writer

Nikkei xTECH/Nikkei Computer

Yuriko Hokazono joined Nikkei BP in 2000 and started her career as a staff writer of Nikkei Business, the most prestigious business weekly magazine in Japan. In 2006 she moved to Real Simple Japan, a joint project between Time Inc. and Nikkei BP as a lifestyle editor. 2 years later, she was assigned to a staff writer of Nikkei Business Associe, a business and lifestyle magazine for young businesspeople. In response to the increase of environmental awareness in the world, she became a staff writer of Nikkei Ecology, a monthly magazine on environmental and social issues in 2010.

She experienced the business side of media companies for over 5 years. She was a producer of Kacho-Juku, which provides training programs for middle managers and a new business for Nikkei BP in 2014. Between 2015-2019, she worked for Global Business of Nikkei Inc. Her main job was to organize international conferences such as Nikkei Global Management Forum (2016-2018), Nikkei Asia Africa Conference on Communicable Diseases (2017-2019) and Indian Prime Minister Modi's Lecture (2018).

In April 2019, she was back to the editorial side as a staff writer of Nikkei xTECH, one of the biggest technology online media and Nikkei Computer, the most famous ICT magazine in Japan.

She graduated from Waseda University with B.A. in Economics in 2000.
